CHAPTER I

The Most High Begins to Prepare in Most Holy Mary the Mystery of the Incarnation during the Nine Days Preceding its Execution; Declaring that which Happened on the First Day.

1. The Most High had placed upon our Queen and Lady the duties of a spouse of St. Joseph, occasioning more opportunity for Her to converse with her neighbors so her blameless life could be to all an example of the highest holiness. The heavenly Lady, finding herself in this new state, was filled with such exalted thoughts and sentiments in the fulfillment of her duties, and ordered all the activities of her life with such wisdom, that She was an object of admirable emulation to the angelic spirits and an unparalleled example for men. Few knew Her and still fewer had spoken with Her, but all of these happy ones received such divine influences from the heavenly Mary that with a wonderful joy and unaccustomed flights of spirit they sought to express and manifest the light which illumined their hearts and which they knew came from Her. The most prudent Queen was not unaware of these operations of the Most High, but neither was it time nor would her most profound humility as yet consent to their becoming known to the world. She continually besought the Lord to hide them from men, to make all the favors of his right hand redound solely to his praise, and to permit Her to be ignored and despised by all mortals insofar as his infinite goodness would not be offended thereby.

2. These prayers were accepted by her divine Spouse with great benignity, and his providence arranged all things in such a manner that the very light which incited men to proclaim her greatness at the same time caused them to be mute. Moved by divine power they refrained from expressing their thoughts, inwardly praising the Lord for the light which they felt within themselves. Filled with admiration they suspended their judgment, and leaving behind the creatures they sought their Creator. Many turned from sin at the mere sight of Her, others amended their lives, and all were affected upon seeing Her and experienced heavenly influences in their souls. But immediately they forgot the source of these influences, for if they could have remained in her presence or retained the memory of her image no one would have been able to bear leaving her presence and all would have hastened to seek Her, if God had not prevented it by a mystery.

3. In such fruitful occupations, and in augmenting the gifts and graces from which all this good proceeded, our Queen, the spouse of Joseph, busied Herself during the six months and seventeen days which intervened between her espousal and the Incarnation of the Word. I cannot pretend to refer even briefly to her great and heroic acts of all the virtues, interior and exterior, all her deeds of charity, humility and religion, and all her works of mercy, her alms and benefactions, for all this exceeds the capacity of the pen. The best I can do is sum it all up and say the Most High found in most holy Mary the fulfillment of all his pleasure and desires as far as possible in the correspondence of a creature with its Creator. By her sanctity and merits God felt Himself as it were obliged and (according to our way of speaking) compelled to hasten his steps and extend the arms of his omnipotence to bring about the greatest of wonders conceivable in the world before or after, namely the Incarnation of the Onlybegotten of the Father in the virginal womb of this Lady.

4. In order to proceed with a dignity befitting Himself, God prepared most holy Mary in a singular manner during the nine days immediately preceding this mystery, and allowed the river of the Divinity to rush impetuously forth to inundate this City of God with its floods (Ps. 45:5). He communicated such great graces, gifts and favors that I am struck dumb by the perception of what has been made known to me concerning this miracle, and my lowliness is filled with dread at even the mention of what I understood, for the tongue, the pen, and all the faculties of a creature fall far below any possibility of revealing such incomprehensible sacraments. Therefore I desire it to be understood that all I say here is only an insignificant shadow of the smallest part of these wonders and ineffable prodigies, which are not at all to be encompassed by our limited words but only by the divine power, which our words do not have.

5. On the first day of this most blessed novena the heavenly Princess Mary, after a slight rest, rose at midnight according to the example of David her father (Ps. 118:62), for this was the order and arrangement given Her by the Lord, and prostrate in the presence of the Most High She began her accustomed prayer and holy exercises. The Angels who attended upon Her spoke to Her and said: "Spouse of our King and Lord, arise, for His Majesty calls Thee." She raised Herself with fervent affection and answered: "The Lord commands the dust to raise itself from the dust." And turning toward the countenance of the Lord who called Her, She added: "My most high and powerful Master, what dost Thou desire to do with me?" At these words her most holy soul was raised in spirit to a new and higher habitation, closer to the same Lord and more remote from all earthly and passing things.

6. She felt at once She was being prepared by those illuminations and purifications which at other times She had experienced in some of the most exalted visions of the Divinity; I shall not dwell on them since I have described them in the first Part (Con. 620-6, 629). The Divinity manifested Himself not by an intuitive but an abstractive vision, so clearly however that by it She understood more of this incomprehensible Object than what the Blessed see and enjoy intuitively. This vision was more exalted and more profound than others of this kind, because each day the heavenly Lady was more capable, and the blessings She received (using them so perfectly) disposed Her for others, and the repeated enlightenments and visions of the Divinity continually enabled Her to respond more and more appropriately to his infinite operations.

7. In this vision our Princess Mary learned most high secrets of the Divinity and his perfections, and especially regarding the communications of God ad extra in the work of creation. She saw it originated in the goodness and liberality of God, and that creatures were not necessary for supplementing his Divine existence, nor for his infinite glory, since without them He was glorious through the interminable eternities before the creation of the world. Many sacraments and secrets were manifested to our Queen which neither can nor should be made known to all, for She alone was the only One (Cant. 6:8; 7:6), the chosen One, selected by the highest King and Lord of creation for these delights. But since Her Highness in this vision perceived this impulse and inclination of the Divinity to communicate Himself ad extra with a force greater than that which makes all the elements tend toward their center, and as She was drawn within the sphere of this divine love, She besought the eternal Father with an inflamed

Heart to send his Onlybegotten into the world and give to men their remedy, since in this manner He would satisfy and (humanly speaking) execute the promptings of his divinity and perfections.

8. These petitions of his Spouse were very sweet to the Lord; they were the scarlet lace (Ib. 4:3) with which She bound and secured his love. In order to proceed to the execution of his intentions He desired to more immediately prepare the tabernacle or temple where He was to descend from the bosom of the eternal Father. He resolved to furnish his beloved and chosen Mother with a clear knowledge of all his works ad extra, just as his omnipotence had made them. On the first day therefore, and in this same vision, He manifested to Her all He had made on the first day of the creation of the world as it is recorded in Genesis, and She perceived all with greater clearness and comprehension than if She had been an eyewitness, for She knew them first as they are in God, and then as they are in themselves.

9. She perceived and understood how the Lord in the beginning created heaven and earth (Gen. 1:1-5); in how far and in what way it was void, and how the darkness was over the face of the deep; how the spirit of the Lord hovered over the waters, and how at the divine command light was made, and what its nature was; how after the darkness was divided it was called night and the light day, and how thus the first day was made. She knew the size of the earth, its longitude, latitude and depth, its caverns of hell, limbo and purgatory with their inhabitants, the countries and climes, the meridians and divisions of the world, and all those who occupied and inhabited them. With the same clearness She knew the inferior orbs and the empyrean heaven, and how the angels were made on the first day; She understood their nature, conditions, diversity, hierarchies, offices, ranks and virtues. The rebellion of the wicked angels was manifested to Her, their fall and the occasion and cause of that fall, though the Lord always concealed from Her that which concerned Herself. She understood the punishment and the effects of sin in the demons, beholding them as they are in themselves; and at the conclusion of the first day the Lord showed to Her how She also was formed of this lowly earthly material and endowed with the same nature as all those who return to the dust. However, He did not say She would again return to it, yet He gave Her such a profound knowledge of earthly existence that the great Queen humiliated Herself to the abyss of nothingness. Being without guilt She lowered Herself more than all the children of Adam combined, full of miseries as we are.

10. This entire vision and all its effects the Most High arranged in such a way as to open up in the Heart of Mary the deep trenches which were required for the foundations of the edifice which He desired to raise in Her and which could touch even the substantial and hypostatic union of the Divinity himself. And since the dignity of Mother of God was without limits and to a certain extent infinite, it was proper for Her to be grounded in a proportionate humility such as would be without limits, though still within the bounds of reason itself. Attaining the summit of virtue, this blessed One among women humbled Herself to such an extent that the most holy Trinity was as it were fully paid and satisfied, and (according to our mode of understanding) constrained to raise Her to the highest position and dignity possible among creatures and nearest to the Divinity himself. In this highest benevolence His Majesty spoke and said to Her:

11. “My Spouse and Dove, great are my desires of redeeming man from sin, and my immense kindness is as it were contravened in not descending to repair the world. Ask Me continually during these days and with great affection for the fulfillment of these desires, and prostrate in my royal presence let not thy petitions and clamors cease, asking Me for the Onlybegotten of the Father to descend in reality to unite Himself with the human nature.” To this command the heavenly Princess responded and said: “Lord and God eternal, who has all power and wisdom, and whose will none can resist (Esther 13:9), who impedes thy omnipotence? Who detains the impetuous current of thy divinity, so thy pleasure in conferring this benefit upon the whole human race remains unfulfilled? If perhaps, O my Beloved, I am the obstacle causing this impediment to such an immeasurable benefit, let me perish before I oppose thy pleasure. This favor cannot depend upon the merits of any creature; therefore, my Lord and Master, do not wait, since we might later on merit it even less. The sins of men are multiplied and grow more offensive to Thee; thus how shall we merit the very blessing of which we become daily more unworthy? In Thee thyself, my Lord, is the reason and motive of our remedy. Thy infinite bounty and thy mercies without number oblige Thee; the groans of thy Prophets and the Fathers of thy people solicit Thee; the Saints desire Thee, the sinners await Thee, and all of them together cry out to Thee. And if I, a vile wormlet, am not unworthy of thy condescension due to my ingratitude, I beseech Thee from the depth of my soul to hasten thy descent and come as our remedy for thy own glory.”

12. When the Princess of heaven had finished this prayer She returned to her ordinary and more natural state; but with this new command She had received from the Lord She continued during that entire day her petitions for the Incarnation of the Word, and with most profound humility She repeated the exercises of prostrating Herself to the ground and praying in the form of a cross, for the Holy Ghost, who governed Her, had taught Her this posture by which She so highly pleased the most blessed Trinity. Seeing from his royal throne in the body of the future Mother of the incarnate Word as it were the crucified Person of Christ, He therefore received this morning sacrifice of the most pure Virgin as an advance offering of that of his most holy Son.

INSTRUCTION GIVEN ME BY THE QUEEN OF HEAVEN.

13. My daughter, mortals are not capable of understanding the indescribable works which the arm of the Omnipotent operated in me, disposing me for the Incarnation of the eternal Word. Especially during the nine days which preceded such an exalted sacrament my spirit was elevated and united with the immutable being of the Divinity, remaining immersed in that ocean of infinite perfections, participating in all its eminent and divine effects which are beyond the conceptions of the human heart. The knowledge of creatures communicated to me penetrated unto their very essence, with greater clarity and privileges than all the angelic spirits, though they are so admirable in this knowledge of all creation because they see God; moreover, the essence of all of them remained impressed upon my mind in order to use them according to my will.

14. What I desire of thee now is that thou must pay attention to what I did with this knowledge, and imitate me according to thy strength by the infused light thou hast received for this purpose. Take advantage of the knowledge of creatures, forming of them a ladder which leads to thy Creator, so in all things thou mayest seek their beginning from whence they originated, and their end to which they are ordered. All of them serve thee as a mirror in which the Divinity is reflected, reminding thee of his omnipotence and inciting thee to the love He desires from thee. Admire with praise the grandeur and magnificence of the Creator, and in his presence humble thyself to the lowest dust; shun no difficulties or suffering in order to become meek and humble of heart. Observe, my dearest, how this virtue of humility was the most firm foundation of all the wonders which the Most High wrought with me; and in order to properly value this virtue, take notice that among all other virtues, just as it is so precious it is also delicate and perishable, for if thou lose it in anything, and art not humble in all things without exception, thou shalt not be truly humble in anything. Remember the earthly and corruptible being thou hast, and be not ignorant that the Most High with grand providence has formed man in such a way that his own existence and formation infers, teaches and repeats the important lesson of humility, so this instruction would never fail him. For this reason He has not formed him of the most excellent material,* and has left the weight of the sanctuary (Ex. 30:24) in his interior, so as in a balance he can place on one side the infinite and eternal being of the Lord, and on the other his own most lowly material existence; by doing this he gives to God what is of God (Mt. 22:21), and to himself what is due to him.

15. I performed this judgment with perfection as an example and instruction for mortals, and I desire thee to do this in imitation of me. Let thy vigilance and study be in becoming humble, by which thou shalt give pleasure to the Most High and myself, who desire thy true perfection, which must be founded upon the most profound trenches of thy self-knowledge, so the deeper its foundations are laid the higher and more exalted may rise the edifice of virtue. Thus according to thy will thou shalt find a deeper habitation in the will of the Lord, since He looks down from the height of his throne upon the humble of the earth (Ps. 112:6).
