

CHAPTER IX

Christ our Savior Parts from His Most Holy Mother in Bethany in order to Go to His Sufferings on the Thursday of the Last Supper; the Great Lady Asks to Partake of Holy Communion when It is Instituted, and Follows Christ to Jerusalem with Magdalen and Other Holy Women.

430. In order to continue the discourse of this History let us return to the Savior of the world in Bethany, where He had returned accompanied by his Apostles after his triumphal entry into Jerusalem. In the last chapter we anticipated the course of events in relating what was undertaken by the demons before the betrayal of Christ, and what resulted from the infernal consultation, the treachery of Judas, and the council of the Pharisees. We will now take up the thread of events in Bethany, where the great Queen attended upon and served her divine Son during the three days intervening between Palm Sunday and Maundy Thursday. All this time, except what was spent on Monday and Tuesday in going to Jerusalem and teaching in the temple, the Author of life spent with his Blessed Mother, for on Wednesday He did not go to Jerusalem as I have already said. On these last journeys He instructed his disciples more clearly and fully concerning the mysteries of his Passion and human Redemption; nevertheless, although they listened to the teachings and forewarnings of their God and Master, each one was affected by them only insofar as his disposition allowed and according to the motives and sentiments of his heart. They were always tardy in their response, and in their weakness they fell short of their protestations of zealous love as the events afterwards showed and as we shall see later on.

431. In those days immediately preceding his Passion our Savior conversed with his Blessed Mother and communicated such exalted sacraments and mysteries of the Redemption and the new law of grace that many of them shall remain hidden until revealed in the beatific vision, and of those which I have understood I can say very little. Yet into the most prudent Heart of the great Queen her Son deposited all that David calls uncertain and hidden of his wisdom (Ps. 50:8), namely the greater part of the secrets of his works ad extra, such as our reparation, the glorification of the predestined, and by them the exaltation of his holy Name. His Majesty instructed the most prudent Mother in all She was to do during his Passion and Death, and illumined Her anew with divine light. In all these conferences her most holy Son spoke to Her with a new and kingly reserve such as was in harmony with the greatness of the matter at hand, for now the tenderness and caresses of a Son and Spouse had entirely ceased; and since the natural love of the sweetest Mother and the burning charity of her purest soul had now reached a degree above all comprehension of the human mind, and as the conversation and interaction with her divine Son was now drawing to a close, no created tongue can describe the tender and mournful affections of that most candid Heart and the sighs of her inmost soul. She was like the mysterious turtledove which already began to feel the approach of that solitude which the company of no creature in heaven or on earth could ever relieve or compensate.

432. Thursday, the eve of the Passion and Death of the Savior, had arrived. At earliest dawn the Lord called to Him his most beloved Mother, and hastening to prostrate Herself at his feet She responded: "Speak, my Lord and Master, for thy servant heareth." Raising Her up from the ground He spoke to Her in words of soothing and most tender love: "My Mother, the hour decreed by the eternal wisdom of my Father for the work of human Redemption and salvation, and imposed upon Me by his most holy and acceptable will, has now arrived. It is proper that we now subject to Him our own will as we have so often offered to do. Give Me thy permission to enter upon my suffering and death for men, and as my true Mother consent that I deliver Myself over to my enemies in obedience to my eternal Father. In this manner do Thou also willingly cooperate with Me in this work of eternal salvation, since I have received from Thee in thy virginal womb the form of a suffering and mortal man in which I am to redeem the world and satisfy divine justice. Just as Thou, of thy own free will, didst consent to my Incarnation (Lk. 1:38), so now I desire Thee to give consent also to my Passion and Death of the cross. To sacrifice Me now of thy own free will to the decree of my eternal Father shall be the return which I ask of Thee for having made Thee my Mother, for He has sent Me so by the passibility of my flesh I can recover the lost sheep of his house, the children of Adam” (Mt. 18:11).

433. These and other reasonings of the Savior pierced the most loving Heart of the Mother of life, and cast Her into the throes of a sorrow greater than She had ever suffered before, because now that hour had arrived in which her sorrowing grief found no appeal, neither to time nor to another superior tribunal above the effective decree of the eternal Father which destined the date for the death of his Son. When now the most prudent Mother looked upon Him as her God, infinite in his attributes and perfections, and as the true Godman in hypostatic union with the Person of the Word, and beheld Him sanctified and ineffably exalted by this union with the Divinity, She remembered the obedience He had shown Her as his Mother during so many years, and the blessings He had conferred upon Her during his long interaction with Her; that soon She was to be deprived of them and of the beauty of his countenance and the vivifying sweetness of his words; and that She was not only to lose this all at once, but even beyond this She herself was to deliver Him over into the hands of such wicked enemies, to ignominies, torments, and the bloody sacrifice of the death of the cross. How deeply must all these considerations and circumstances, now so clearly before her mind, have penetrated into her tender and loving Heart and filled it with a sorrow immeasurable! But with the magnanimity of a Queen, vanquishing this invincible pain, She prostrated Herself at the feet of her divine Son and Master, and in deepest reverence, kissing his feet, answered:

434. “Lord and highest God, Author of all that has being, though Thou art the Son of my womb, I am thy handmaid; the condescension of thy ineffable love alone has raised me from the dust to the dignity of being thy Mother. It is altogether appropriate for me, a vile wormlet, to acknowledge and thank thy most liberal clemency by obeying the will of the eternal Father and thy own. I offer myself and resign myself to his divine pleasure in order that in me, just as in Thee, my Son and Lord, shall be fulfilled his eternal and adorable will. The greatest sacrifice which I can make is that I shall not be able to die with Thee and these lots be exchanged, for to suffer in imitation of Thee and in thy company would be a great relief for my pains, and all torments would be sweet if undergone in union with thine. Accept my sorrow in not being able to alleviate the torments which for human salvation Thou shalt suffer. Receive, O my Good, this sacrifice of my desire to die with Thee, and of my still continuing to live while Thou, the most innocent Lamb and figure of the substance of thy eternal Father (Heb. 1:3), dost suffer death. Receive also the agonies of my sorrow to see the inhuman cruelty of thy enemies executed upon thy exalted Person because of the wickedness of the human race. O ye heavens and elements and all creatures within them, ye sovereign spirits, ye Patriarchs and Prophets, help me all of ye to mourn the death of my Beloved who gave thee being, and bewail with me the misery of men who are the cause of this death, and who, failing to profit by such great blessings, shall lose that eternal life so dearly bought! O unhappy ye who are foreknown as doomed! And O ye happy predestined, who shall wash thy stoles in the blood of the Lamb (Apoc. 7:14)! Ye who knew how to profit by this blessed sacrifice, praise ye the Lord Almighty! O my Son and infinite delight of my soul, give fortitude and strength to thy afflicted Mother; admit her as thy disciple and companion so she may participate in thy Passion and Cross, and so the eternal Father may receive the sacrifice of thy Mother in union with thine.”

435. With these and other expressions of her sentiments, which I cannot all record in words, the Queen of heaven answered her most holy Son, and offered Herself as a companion and Coadjutrix in his Passion. Being thus thoroughly instructed and prepared by divine light for all the mysteries to be wrought by the Master of life for accomplishing all his great ends, the most pure Mother, with the permission of the Lord, added another request in the following words: “Beloved of my soul and light of my eyes, my Son, I am not worthy to ask Thee what I desire from my inmost soul; but Thou, O Lord, art the life of my hope, and in this my trust I beseech Thee, if such be thy pleasure, to make me a participant in the ineffable Sacrament of thy sacred body and blood. Thou hast resolved to institute it as a pledge of thy glory, and I desire in receiving Thee sacramentally in my heart to share the effects of this new and admirable Sacrament. Well do I know, O Lord, that no creature can ever merit such an exquisite blessing, which Thou hast resolved to set above all the works of thy magnificence, and in order to induce Thee to confer it upon me I have nothing else to offer except thy own Self and all thy infinite merits. If by perpetuating these merits through the same humanity which Thou hast received from my womb creates for me a certain right, let this right consist not so much in giving Thyself to me in this Sacrament as in making me thine by this new possession which restores to me thy most sweet companionship. All my desires and exertions I have devoted to the worthy reception of this Holy Communion from the moment in which Thou gavest me knowledge of it and ever since it was thy fixed decree to remain in the holy Church under the species of consecrated bread and wine. Do Thou then, my Lord and God, return to thy first habitation which Thou didst find in thy beloved Mother and thy slave, whom Thou hast prepared for thy reception by exempting her from the common touch of sin. Then shall I receive within me the humanity which I have communicated to Thee from my own blood, and thus shall we be united in a renewed and close embrace. This prospect enkindles my heart with most ardent love, and may I never be separated from Thee, who art the infinite Good and the Love of my soul.”

436. Many words of incomparable love and reverence were spoken on that occasion by the Queen and Lady, for in the wonderful love of her Heart She sought from her most holy Son the privilege of participating in his sacred body and blood. The Lord on his part answered Her with great tenderness and granted her request, promising Her the blessing of Holy Communion at the hour of its institution. In deepest devotion the purest Mother broke out in heroic acts of humility, gratitude, reverence, and living faith in expectation of the desired participation in the most holy Eucharist. Then happened what I shall relate next.

437. The Savior commanded the holy Angels of her guard to attend upon Her in visible forms and serve and console Her in her sorrow and loneliness, and they complied most faithfully with this command. The Lord also expressed his desire that after his departure for Jerusalem with his disciples She follow shortly after in company with the holy women who had accompanied them from Galilee, and instruct and encourage them so they might not be scandalized in seeing Him suffer the great ignominies and torments of the frightful death of the cross. At the close of this interview the Son of the eternal Father gave his blessing to his beloved Mother and prepared to enter upon that last journey which led to his suffering and death. The sorrow which filled the Hearts of both Son and Mother surpasses all conception of man, for it was proportioned to the love they had for each other, and this love again was proportioned to the dignity and greatness of the persons concerned. Yet though we can so little describe it in words, we are not free to exempt ourselves from meditating upon it and following them on their sorrowful journey with the deepest compassion, for if we neglect to do so as far as our strength and ability permits we cannot avoid being reprehended as hardhearted ingrates.

438. Our Savior, having thus parted with his most beloved Mother and sorrowful Spouse, and taking along with Him all his Apostles, a little before midday of the Thursday of the Last Supper, departed on his last journey from Bethany to Jerusalem. At the very outset He raised his eyes to the eternal Father, and confessing Him in words of gratitude and praise again professed his most ardent love, and most lovingly and obediently offered to suffer and die for the Redemption of the human race. This prayer and sacrifice of our Savior and Master sprang from such ineffable love and ardor of his spirit that it cannot be described; all I could say of it seems to me rather a gainsaying of the truth and of what I desire to say. "Eternal Father and my God (said Christ our Lord), I go by thy will and love to suffer and die for the liberation of men, my brethren and the creatures of thy hands. I deliver Myself up for their remedy and to gather those who have been scattered and divided by the sin of Adam (Jn. 11:52). I go to prepare the treasures by which the creatures made according to thy image and likeness are to be enriched and adorned so they can be restored to the height of thy friendship and to eternal happiness, and so thy holy Name may be known and exalted among all creatures. As far as shall depend upon Thee and Me no soul shall be deprived of a salvation most abundant, and thy inviolate equity shall stand justified in all those who despise this copious Redemption."

439. Following the Author of life the Blessed Mother then departed Bethany in the company of Magdalen and the other holy women who had attended upon and followed Christ our Savior from Galilee. In the same manner as the divine Master instructed his Apostles and prepared them for his Passion so they might not desert Him due to the ignominies they were to witness and the temptations of Satan they were to encounter, so also the Queen and Mistress of all virtues exerted Herself in consoling and preparing her holy congregation of disciples for witnessing courageously the frightful scourging, torments and death of their divine Master. Though because of their feminine nature these women naturally were more frail and weak than the Apostles, yet some of them showed much more fortitude in adhering to the teachings and relying on the previous exhortations and examples of their great Mistress and Lady. Among them all St. Mary Magdalen distinguished herself, as the Evangelists relate (Mt. 27:56; Mk. 15:40; Lk. 24:10; Jn. 19:25), for she was entirely consumed in the flames of her love, and she was even naturally of a magnanimous, courageous and energetic disposition, well educated and full of a noble fidelity. Before all others of the apostolate she had taken it upon herself to accompany the Mother of Jesus and attend upon Her during the entire Passion, and this she fulfilled as a most faithful friend.

440. In the prayer and offering which our Savior made on this occasion his most holy Mother imitated and joined Him, for all the works of her most holy Son were reflected in the clear mirror of that divine light by which She knew them in order to imitate them, as I have many times related (Inc. 481, etc.). Her holy Guardian Angels, obeying the orders of the Savior, accompanied and attended upon Her in visible forms. With these sovereign spirits She conferred about the great sacrament of the Passion of her most holy Son, which could not be perceived by her companions, yea by none of the human race. The holy Angels well perceived and deeply pondered the measureless conflagration of love in the pure and candid Heart of the Mother, and the force with which they saw Her drawn after the sweet ointments of mutual love (Cant. 1:3) between Herself and Christ, her Son, Spouse and Redeemer. They presented to the eternal Father the sacrifice of praise and expiation offered to Him by his firstborn and only Daughter among the creatures. Since all mortals were insensible of this benefit and of the indebtedness in which they were placed by the love of Christ their Lord and his most holy Mother, She ordered the holy Angels to give benediction, glory and honor to the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, and they eagerly fulfilled everything according to the will of their great Princess and Queen.

441. Words fail me, along with worthy sentiments of sorrow, for expressing properly what I understood on this occasion concerning the amazement of the holy Angels, when on the one hand they saw the incarnate Word and his most holy Mother wending their way in most ardent love of mankind toward the accomplishment of the Redemption of man, and on the other beheld the vileness, ingratitude, and hardhearted neglect of men concerning their obligations consequent upon this blessing, a blessing which would have moved to recognition even the demons if they had been the objects of such a benefit. The amazement of the Angels arose not from any ignorance on their part, but from indignation at our unbearable ingratitude. I am but a weak woman and less than a wormlet of the earth, yet in the light which has been given me concerning this matter I wish to raise up my voice so it may be heard through all the world and rouse the children of vanity and lovers of deceit (Ps. 4:3) to a sense of their obligation toward Christ and his holy Mother. Prostrate on my face I implore all of us to not be so heavy of heart and such cruel enemies toward ourselves, that we shake ourselves from this lethargy in which we are so forgetful that it buries us in the danger of eternal death, and separates us from the celestial life and eternal happiness merited for us by Christ our Redeemer and Lord by such a bitter death of the cross.

INSTRUCTION GIVEN ME BY THE MOST HOLY QUEEN MARY.

442. My daughter, since thy soul has been furnished with special gifts of enlightenment I call and invite thee anew to cast thyself into the sea of mysteries contained in the Passion and Death of my divine Son. Direct all thy faculties and strain all the powers of thy heart and soul to make thyself at least somewhat worthy of understanding and meditating upon the ignominies and sorrows the Son of the eternal Father deigned to suffer, humiliating Himself unto death on a cross in order to redeem men, and also of considering my doings and sufferings in connection with his most bitter Passion. This science, so much neglected by men, I desire thee, my daughter, to study and learn in order to be capable of following thy Spouse and imitating me, who am thy Mother and Teacher. Writing down and feeling deeply all that I shall teach thee of these mysteries, thou must detach thyself entirely from human and earthly affections and from thy own self in order to freely follow our footsteps in destitution and poverty. And since I do thee the special favor of calling thee aside to instruct thee in fulfillment of the will of my holy Son, and since we seek through thee to teach others, thou must correspond to this copious Redemption as if it was solely for thy benefit (Gal. 2:20), and as if all of it would be lost if thou dost not profit by its blessings. This is how much thou must esteem the Redemption, for in the love which caused my most holy Son to die for thee He looked upon thee with as great an affection as if thou hadst been the only one who needed the remedy of his Passion and Death.

443. This is the standard by which thou must measure thy obligations and thy gratitude. Hence, since thou dost see the base and dangerous forgetfulness of men in regard to this benefit, and knowest for these very men their God and Creator suffered death, it should be thy earnest endeavor to compensate Him for their neglect by thy ardent love as if the proper return for his benefits was left entirely to thy fidelity and gratitude alone. At the same time grieve over the blind folly of men in despising eternal felicity and in treasuring up for themselves the wrath of the Lord by frustrating the boundless effects of his love for the world. This is the purpose for which I make known to thee so many secrets and my unparalleled sorrow in the hour of his parting from me to go to his sacred sufferings unto death. There are no words which can describe the bitterness of my soul on that occasion, but the contemplation of it should cause thee to esteem no hardship great, and to seek no rest or consolation on earth except to suffer and die for Christ. Do thou sorrow with me, for this faithful correspondence is due to me since I have so favored thee.

444. I desire thee also to ponder what a horrible crime it is in the eyes of the Lord, in mine, and in those of all the saints, that men despise and neglect the frequent reception of Holy Communion, and approach it without preparation and fervent devotion. Principally so thou mayest understand and record this warning I have manifested to thee what I did in preparing myself for so many years for the reception of my most blessed Son in the holy Sacrament (124-5), and also the rest which thou art yet to write for the instruction and confusion of men (486; Cor. 109, 583). For if I, who was innocent of any hindering sin and was filled with all graces, sought to increase my fitness for this favor by such fervent acts of love, humility and gratitude, what efforts must thou and the other children of the Church, who every day and hour incur new guilt and blame, make in order to fit thyself for the beauty of the divinity and humanity of my most holy Son? What excuse can those men give at the Last Judgment who have despised this ineffable love and blessing which they had always present in the holy Church, ready to fill them with the plenitude of his gifts, and who rather sought diversion in worldly pleasures and attended upon the outward and deceitful vanities of this earthly life? Be thou amazed at this insanity as were the holy Angels, and guard thyself against falling into the same error.
