

CHAPTER III

What Happened with Most Holy Mary Regarding the Death and Chastisement of Herod; St. John Preaches in Ephesus, Working Many Miracles; Lucifer Rises Up to Make War on the Queen of Heaven.

413. In the rational creature love produces on the heart effects similar to those of the force of gravity on the stone. The stone tends to move wherever its own weight draws it, that is to its center of attraction; love is the weight of the heart, drawing it to its center, namely to that which it loves. If at any time the heart is diverted by necessity or inadvertence, love will immediately make it recoil like a liberated spring returning again to its normal position. This weight or sway of love seems in a manner to take away the liberty of the heart insofar as it becomes subject and subservient to what it loves; it prevents the will from commanding any other course of action than that sought and ordered by the urgency of this love. The happiness or unhappiness of mortals arises from the good or evil use it makes of love, for what man loves he makes his master.* If this master is evil and vile so also shall the man be tyrannized and degraded; if good, then he shall be ennobled and made happy, and the more noble and excellent is the good he loves the more happy he shall be. By these principles I hope to be able to explain in part what has been made known to me concerning the exalted state in which most holy Mary lived, never having dropped from it but rising higher and higher from the first instant of her Conception without interruption or relaxation until She entered the state of a comprehensor in the beatific vision.

414. If all the love of the holy angels and of men could be united in one person, it would be less than that of Mary most holy; yet if we could unite the love of all the other creatures into one whole, it is certain that such a conflagration of love would result that without being infinite it would seem so to us because it would surpass all our comprehension. If then the charity of our great Queen exceeded all this, only the infinite Wisdom could weigh the love of this creature and the intensity with which She possessed and inclined toward the Divinity; however, we can at least understand in this most chaste, pure and inflamed Heart there could be no other mastery or sway, no other movement or liberty, except that of loving supremely the highest Good, and this in such an exalted degree that with our limited capacity we can much sooner believe it than understand it, confess it than penetrate it. This charity which possessed the Heart of Mary most pure filled Her at the same time with the most ardent desires of seeing the face of the highest Good who was absent, and assisting the holy Church which was present to Her. Thus She was consumed by two opposite tendencies; yet She governed them with such wisdom that there arose from them no conflict within Her, nor did She give Herself up to the one to the neglect of the other, but attended completely to both to the admiration of all the saints and the fullest complacency of the Saint of Saints.

415. In this exalted and eminent state of sanctity most holy Mary often consulted within her Heart about the condition of the primitive Church left in her charge and how She could exert Herself for its peace and progress. The liberation of St. Peter, so as head of the Church he could attend to the government of the faithful, as well as the casting forth of Lucifer and his demons from Jerusalem, which for a time freed the faithful from their tyranny, gave Her some relief and consolation in these cares and longings due to the brief break and moderation of the persecution directed against the followers of Christ. The divine Wisdom, which dispenses labors and consolations with weight and measure (Wis. 11:21), ordained that the most prudent Mother at that time have a very intimate knowledge of the evil disposition of Herod. She perceived the abominable ugliness of that most unfortunate soul brought on by his great and excessive vices and repeated sins which had stirred up the indignation of the just and almighty Judge. She also knew that by the evil seed sown by the demons in the hearts of Herod and the Jews they were entirely enraged against Jesus our Redeemer and his disciples after the escape of St. Peter, how the iniquitous king and ruler had the intention of annihilating all the faithful within the confines of Judea and Galilee, and that he would employ in this work all his forces and power. Although most holy Mary was aware of this design of Herod, She was not informed at that time of his horrid death; yet knowing his power and the depravity of his soul She was horrified at his evil state and deeply grieved at his wrath against the followers of the faith.

416. Between these cares and her confidence in the divine favor our Queen labored incessantly, imploring the Lord with tears, holy exercises, and clamors, as I have said on other occasions. Ever governed by her most exalted prudence, She spoke to one of the highest Angels of her guard, saying: "Minister of the Most High and creature of his hands, my solicitude for the holy Church strongly urges me to seek its welfare and progress. I beseech thee to ascend to the throne of the Most High and represent to Him my affliction; ask Him in my name if I may be permitted to suffer instead of his faithful servants, and that Herod be prevented from executing his designs for the destruction of the Church." Immediately the Angel went to the Lord with this message while the Queen of heaven, like another Esther, remained in prayer for the liberty and salvation of her people and of Herself (Esther 4:16). The heavenly ambassador was sent back by the blessed Trinity with the answer: "Princess of the heavens, the Lord of hosts says Thou art the Mother, the Lady, and the Governess of the Church, and Thou holdest his power while Thou art upon earth, and He desires Thee, as the Queen and Mistress of heaven and earth, to pronounce sentence upon Herod."

417. In her humility most holy Mary was somewhat disturbed by this answer, and urged by her charity She replied to the Angel: "Am I then to pronounce sentence against a creature who is the image of the Lord? Since I came forth from his hands I have known many reprobates among men, and I have never called for vengeance against them, but as far as I was concerned I have always desired their salvation if possible and have never hastened their punishment. Return, O Angel, to the Lord and tell Him that my tribunal and power is inferior to and dependent upon his, and hence I cannot sentence anyone to death without consulting my Superior; and if it is possible to bring Herod to the way of salvation I am willing to suffer all the labors of the world according to the disposition of his divine Providence so this soul may not be lost." The Angel returned with this second message of his Queen, and having presented it before the throne of the most blessed Trinity was sent back to Her with the following answer: "Our Mistress and Queen, the Most High says Herod is of the number of the foreknown, since he is so obstinate in his malice he will take no admonition or instruction, will not cooperate with the helps given to him, nor will he avail himself of the fruits of the Redemption, nor of the intercession of the saints, nor of thy own efforts, O Queen and Lady, in his behalf."

418. For the third time most holy Mary dispatched the holy prince with still another message to the Most High, saying: "If it must be that Herod die in order to hinder him from persecuting the Church, do thou, my Angel, represent to the Almighty how in the infinite condescension of his charity He has granted me in mortal life to be the Refuge of the children of Adam, the Advocate and Intercessor of sinners; that my tribunal is one of kindness and clemency for the refuge and assistance of all who seek my intercession; and hence all should leave it with the assurance of pardon in the name of my divine Son. If then I am to be a loving Mother to men, who are the creatures of his hands and the price of his blood and life, how can I now be a severe judge against one of them? Never was I charged with dealing out justice, but always mercy to which all my heart inclines; and now it is troubled by this conflict of love with obedience to rigorous justice. Present anew, O Angel, this concern to the Lord, and learn whether it is his pleasure that Herod die without my condemning him.”

419. The holy messenger ascended for the third time and the most blessed Trinity listened to his message with the plenitude of pleasure and complacency at the pitying charity of his Spouse. The Angel returned and thus informed the loving Lady: “Our Queen, Mother of our Creator and my Lady, His omnipotent Majesty says thy mercy is for those mortals who desire to avail themselves of thy powerful intercession, not for those who despise and abhor it like Herod; that Thou art the Lady of the Church, invested with all the divine power, and therefore it is appropriate Thou use it as is opportune; that Herod must die, but it shall be through thy sentence and according to thy order.” Most holy Mary answered: “Just is the Lord and equitable are his judgments (Ps. 118:137). Many times would I suffer death to rescue the soul of Herod if he himself would not by his own free will make himself unworthy of mercy and choose perdition. He is a work of the Most High (Job. 10:8), formed according to his image and likeness (Gen. 1:27); he was redeemed by the blood of the Lamb (Apoc. 1:5), which washes away the sins of the world. Nevertheless I set all of this aside, and considering only his having become an obstinate enemy of God, unworthy of his eternal friendship, by the most equitable justice of God I condemn him to the death he has merited* so he would not incur greater torments by executing the evil he has planned.”

420. This wonder the Lord wrought for the glory of his Blessed Mother and in witness of his having constituted Her as the Lady of all creatures with supreme power to act as their Sovereign like her divine Son. I cannot explain this mystery better than in the words of the Lord in chapter V of St. John’s Gospel (v. 19ff.), where He says of Himself: The Son cannot do anything that the Father does not do, but He does the same, because the Father loves Him; and if the Father raises the dead, the Son also raises whom He will; and the Father has given all judgment to the Son, that just as all honor the Father, they may also honor the Son; for no one can honor the Father without honoring the Son. And immediately He adds the Father has given Him the power of judging because He is the Son of man, which He is through his most blessed Mother. Due to the likeness of the divine Mother to her Son (of which I have often spoken) the relation or proportion of the Mother with the Son in this power of judgment must be transferred to the Mother in the same manner as that of the Son from the Father; and though most holy Mary is the Mother of mercy and clemency to all the children of Adam who call upon Her, in addition to this the Almighty desires it to be understood She possesses plenary power of judging all men, and hence all should honor Her as they honor her Son and true God. As his true Mother He has given Her the same power with Him in the degree and proportion due to Her as his Mother and a mere creature.

421. Making use of this power the great Lady sent the Angel to Caesarea, where Herod then was, to take away his life as the minister of divine justice. The Angel executed the sentence without delay. The Angel promptly executed the sentence, and as the evangelist St. Luke says (Acts 12:23) the Angel of the Lord struck him, and being eaten up by worms the unhappy Herod died the temporal and eternal death. The wound of this stroke was interior, and from it sprang the corruption and worms which so miserably finished him. From the same text it states that after having beheaded St. James, and after St. Peter had escaped, Herod went down from Jerusalem to Caesarea in order to compose some differences which had arisen between him and the inhabitants of Tyre and Sidon (Ib. 19-20). Within a few days, vested in the royal purple and seated upon a throne, he gave the people an oration with great eloquence of words. The people, full of vain flattery, proclaimed him as a victor and as a god (Ib. 22), and Herod in foolish vanity was pleased with this adulation of the people. Because he had not given the honor to God, but rather usurped to himself divine honor in vain pride as St. Luke says, the Angel of the Lord struck him. Although this was the last sin which filled the measure of his iniquity, he merited this chastisement not only for this but for so many other sins committed by him in persecuting the Apostles, mocking the Lord our Savior (Luke 23:11), beheading the Baptist (Mk. 6:27), committing adultery with his sister-in-law Herodias (Ib. 17), and for many other abominations.

* cf. Mt. 19:28; I Cor. 6:2; Wis. 3:8; Introit, Vigil of All Saints (Oct. 31) [Ed.]

422. Immediately the Angel returned to Ephesus and gave an account of the execution of the sentence against Herod. The merciful Mother wept over the loss of this soul, but praised the judgments of the Lord and gave Him thanks for the benefit which the Church would derive from his chastisement, for as St. Luke says (Acts 12:24) the Church grew and increased by the word of God. This was true not only in Galilee and Judea, where the persecutor Herod was removed, but through St. John and the help of the Blessed Mother the Church was taking root in Ephesus. The science of the sacred Evangelist was as replete as that of a Cherubim, and the love of his heart was inflamed like a supreme Seraphim, and he had with him as his Mother and Teacher the very Authoress of wisdom* and grace.† Because of these precious advantages the Evangelist could undertake great and wonderful works for the foundation of the law of grace not only in Ephesus but in all the neighboring regions of Asia and the borderlands of Europe.

423. Arriving at Ephesus the Evangelist began to preach in the city, baptizing those whom he converted to the faith of Christ our Savior and confirming the faith by great miracles and prodigies such as had never been witnessed by those gentiles. Since the Greek schools in those countries turned out many philosophers and men learned in human sciences, though full of errors, the sacred Apostle convincingly taught them the true science, making use not only of miracles and signs but of argumentation for the credibility of the Christian faith. All his catechumens he immediately sent to most holy Mary, and She instructed many. Since She knew the interior inclinations of all, She spoke to the heart of each one and filled it with the influences of the divine light. She wrought many and prodigious miracles and benefits, curing the possessed and all those who were sick, succoring the poor and the needy, and by the labor of her own hands gave assistance to the sick in the infirmaries, attending upon them in person. In her house the most kind Queen had a supply of clothes for the most poor and forsaken of her fellowmen. She helped many in the hour of death, and in that most dangerous moment gained many souls, bringing them to their Creator and withdrawing them from the tyranny of the demon. So many souls did She draw to the path of truth and eternal life, and so numerous were the wonders She wrought for this end, that they could not be recorded in many books, for no day passed in which She did not increase the possessions of the Lord by the copious and abundant fruit of souls.

424. Because of the growth of the primitive Church through the holiness, solicitude and labors of the Queen of heaven the demons were filled with confusion and furious disappointment.

* cf. Eccles. 24:40 [Ed.]

† cf. Eccles. 24:25 [Ed.]

Although they rejoice in the condemnation of all souls they carry to their eternal darkness because it swells the numbers of the damned in hell, nevertheless they experienced great torment with the death of Herod, for due to his obstinacy they had expected from him no amendment of his vile and abominable life, and hence had considered him a powerful instrument* for the persecution of the followers of Christ our Good. Divine Providence gave permission to Lucifer and those infernal dragons to emerge from the depths of hell where they had been cast forth from Jerusalem by most holy Mary, as I related in the preceding chapter (406). After having spent this time in hell arbitrating and preparing temptations for their conflict with the invincible Queen of the Angels, Lucifer resolved to make complaint against Her to the Lord himself as he had done against holy Job (Job 1:9), though with greater wrath against Mary most holy. Coming forth from the abyss with this thought in mind he spoke to his ministers and told them:

425. “If we do not vanquish this Woman, our Enemy, I fear without a doubt She will destroy my sovereignty, for we all find in Her a strength more than human which annihilates and oppresses us whenever and in whatsoever manner She pleases to use it. This is what makes Her intolerable to me, for if She were God, who is offended by my high aspirations and hostility, and who has infinite power to destroy us, I would not feel so much confusion at being overcome. But this Woman, though She is the Mother of the incarnate Word, is not God; She is a mere creature of a nature inferior to ours. I will not further endure to be treated by Her in such an imperious manner and be ruined by her opposition to me. Let us all go forth to destroy Her, and let us make our complaint to the Omnipotent as we have now concluded to do.” In reliance upon his pretended rights the dragon executed his resolve, for he alleged that God, instead of leaving Her in her humble condition exposed to the persecutions and temptations of the demons, had by his graces and gifts unjustly raised this Woman above him, though She was but dust of the earth while he was an angel of such superior essence. But I must remark these hellish foes did not present themselves before the Lord by a vision they had of his divinity, since they are incapable of attaining this, but through the knowledge and belief they have, though curtailed and compulsory, in the supernatural mysteries, they are permitted to speak to God. This is what is meant when they are mentioned as being in the presence of God to make complaint or speak with Him.

426. The Almighty gave Lucifer permission to go forth in battle against most holy Mary, but the conditions asked by Satan were unjust and therefore many of them were not conceded. The divine Wisdom furnished those weapons which were appropriate to each combatant so the victory of his Mother would be so much the more glorious and crush the head of this ancient and poisonous serpent (Gen 3:15). This battle was mysterious as was its triumphant outcome as we shall see in the following chapters, and is contained in chapter XII of the Apocalypse, along with other mysteries of which I spoke in the first Part of this History dilating upon that chapter (Con. 94ff.). I wish only to state here divine Providence preordained all this, not only for the greater glory of his most holy Mother and the exaltation of the divine power and wisdom, but also in order to give a just motive for relieving the Church from the persecutions which the demons fabricated against it, and to oblige his infinite goodness to shower with equity upon the Church itself the benefits and favors earned for it by these victories of most holy Mary, for She alone and no other soul could gain them.† The Lord continually works in this manner in his Church, preparing and fortifying some chosen souls against which, as members and parts of his holy Church, the dragon can exert all his wrath and fury. If they overcome him by the help of divine grace their victories redound to the benefit of the whole Mystical Body of the faithful, and the enemy loses some of his right and power over them.

INSTRUCTION GIVEN ME BY THE GREAT QUEEN OF THE ANGELS, MARY MOST HOLY.

427. My daughter, when in the course of this History I so often call thy attention to the lamentable state of the world and of the holy Church in which thou livest, and when I so often express my maternal solicitude for thee to imitate me, remember, my dearest, I have great reasons for obliging thee to lament with me and for desiring thee to weep over that which I bewailed in my mortal life, and which would afflict me in my present state if in it I was capable of sorrow. I assure thee, soul, thou hast reached times in which thou ought to shed tears of blood due to the calamities coming over the children of Adam. Since thou cannot at one and the same time attain a full knowledge of them all, I remind thee what from my place in heaven I see going on in the whole world among the believers of the holy faith. Turn then thine eyes upon those multitudes and behold the greater part of the children of Adam in the darkness and errors of unbelief, rushing without hope of salvation to eternal perdition. Behold also the children of the faith and of the Church, how heedless and forgetful of this damage they continue to be, without any who grieve over it; for in contempt of their own salvation they do not care about the salvation of others, and their faith being dead and their love extinct they do not sorrow for the loss of souls created by God and redeemed by the blood of the incarnate Word.

428. All are the children of the eternal Father who is in heaven (Mt. 23:9), and all are obliged to have care of their brethren according to the condition of each one. This obligation rests more especially upon the children of the Church, who can live up to it by their prayers and supplications. But this duty is greater in the powerful and those who by means of the same Christian faith are nourished and are more benefited by the liberal hand of the Lord. Those who through the law of Christ are favored with temporal advantages and who make use of them for the service and the delights of the flesh are they who as the powerful are to be more powerfully tormented (Wis. 6:7). If the pastors and superiors of the house of the Lord seek only a life of ease, without caring to engage in true earnest labor, they shall make themselves accountable for the ruin of the flock of Christ and the carnage brought on by the infernal wolves. O my daughter, into what a lamentable state has the Christian people been cast by the powerful, the pastors, and the wicked ministers whom God has given them in his secret judgments! O what confusion and chastisements await them! Before the tribunal of the just Judge they shall have no excuse, since the Catholic truth undeceives them and their conscience loudly protests, while they willfully remain deaf to all warnings.

429. The cause of God and of his honor sits solitary* and without a master; his estates, which are the souls, without true nourishment;† nearly all look to their own interest and preservation, each one according to his own diabolical cunning and state of life. Truth is obscured, flattery raises its voice, avarice is unbridled, the blood of Christ is trodden under foot, the fruits of the Redemption are held in contempt. No one wishes to risk his own comfort or interest in order that souls, who cost the Lord his Passion and life, would not be lost. Even the friends of God are influenced by the evils, for they do not make use of their charity and its holy liberty as they ought, and most of them allow themselves to be overcome by their cowardice and content themselves with working for themselves alone, forsaking the common cause of the souls of others. By this, my daughter, thou canst understand that although my most holy Son has planted the evangelical Church by his hands and fertilized it by his own blood, nevertheless upon Her have come those unhappy times regarding which the Lord himself complains through his holy Prophets, saying (Joel 1:4): That which the palmerworm hath left, the locust hath eaten; and that which the locust hath left, the bruchus hath eaten; and that which the bruchus hath left, the mildew hath destroyed; and in order to gather the fruit of his vineyard the Lord goes about like the gleaner after the vintage (Is. 24:13), who seeks some remaining grape or olive which is not dried up or carried away by the demons.

* cf. Lam. 1:1 [Ed.]

430. Now tell me, my daughter, how is it possible for thee, if thou still hast a true love for my divine Son and for me, to find consolation or rest in thy heart at the sight of the loss of souls whom He redeemed by his blood, and whom I have sought to gain by my tears, which many times were tears of blood? Even today if I could shed them I would begin to do so with new weeping and compassion; but since it is not now possible for me to weep over the dangers threatening the Church, I desire thee to do it, and to spurn consolation in a misfortune so calamitous and so worthy of lament. Weep bitterly then, and lose not the merit of such a sorrow; and let it be so deep thou findest no relief except in affliction for the sake of the Lord whom thou lovest. Think of what I did in order to stave off the damnation of Herod and prevent it for those who desire to avail themselves of my intercession; and in the beatific vision my continual requests are for the salvation of my devotees. Be not dismayed by the labors and tribulations sent to thee by my divine Son so thou mayest help thy brethren and acquire them for the house of the Lord. Amid the injuries done to Him by the children of Adam do thou labor to recompense the Lord for them in some measure by the purity of thy soul, which I desire to be rather that of an angel than of an earthborn woman. Fight the battles of the Lord against his enemies, and in his name and mine crush their head, reign over their pride, and cast them into hell. Do thou also counsel the ministers of Christ with whom thou dost converse to use their power in doing the same, to defend the souls in lively faith, and in them the honor and glory of the Lord, for thus shall they repress and vanquish them with divine power.
